Pat Robertson too old to be trusted

Dear Editor:

Your editorial about Pat Robertson [11/12/07] was basically far-fetched. You failed to realize that he can't be wrong after all he gets first information directly from God. The true truth is, Pat is now an old ignorant man who does what most old people do, they lose their minds and make awful mistakes that they never would in younger days.

In the Old Testament no man could be a high priest who was not 30 years old and they had to leave the office at age 50. There was a reason for this system. A man less than 30 makes mistakes because he lacks wisdom and a man over 50 makes mistakes because he's getting old. You have to realize that Pat is about 75 at least and because of his age he no longer can reason as he once did and his ability to use logic is gone for the most part. Pat will say today what he will take back tomorrow.

You could probably cause him to change his mind by asking him questions about Giuliani that without doubt Pat overlooked.

That is Pat's problem — his mind is going. He knows better, he just forgot it. You see, liberalism is a mental disorder and Pat is not a liberal. He is not for abortion. He is not for the homosexual agenda. He is not for gun control. He supported Giuliani. That's why Christians stopped breathing the moment he said that. That's the old Pat Robertson, I mean the old man his age speaking.
